LOCAL NEWS.

Dimond's trial for manslaughter comes on to-day.

The Kinau's volcano party returning yesterday numbered fifteen.

Officer Holoua yesterday hauled in a Chinaman caught smoking opium.

The steam laundry under its new ownership begins collecting washing to-day.

The Kinau brings word of continued but not increased activity in the volcano.

There is rather a surplus of fast driving on the Palama road these evenings.

The opium bill was not reached on Saturday, the main tax bill occupying all the sitting.

An association of school girls is projected, to make articles of wear for the inmates of the leper hospitals.

The manager of one of the largest livery and hack stables reports business to be brisk, which is a good sign.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. White will shortly open the Eagle House, in the building known as the Temperance Hotel.

A young lady prefers a complaint to the HERALD against allowing Chinese to drive and heavily load sick and sore horses.

Mr. John Magoon is to begin a collection and real estate agency in the office of his son, Mr. J. A. Magoon the lawyer.

Mr. J. H. Stevens, a passenger in transit on the Australia, was well known here as an insurance man a few years ago.

A Bible reading will be held at the Seventh Day Adventist mission this evening. Subject: "The Second Advent and the Binding of Satan."

Henry Norman, who made a good impression in Honolulu as the baritone of an opera company, is singing in a musical comedy in San Francisco.

Mrs. Frank Gardner, who with her husband was a passenger for the Colonies on the Australia, is "Carrie Swain," a famous comedienne and soubrette.

"There was the stone age, the iron age, the golden age, and here's the leak-age," said the Water Works employee as he saw water oozing up at a street corner.

"There will be no change of Ministry before the next session," is the declaration of a Hawaiian gentleman occupying a reserved seat in the political arena.

Mr. Jas. T. Sherwood, hurt by the capsizing of the coach the other day, resumed the driver's seat on the Wai-iki-ki bus yesterday, driving all day although feeling somewhat sore.

Mr. Raymond, the organizer of excursions from the "Hub" to all parts of the globe, is in Honolulu, so that a party of Eastern tourists may be expected here in the early part of futurity.

During the whole day and night of Saturday the S. S. Australia was taking on board 400 tons of coal and discharging her freight, the latter consisting partly of heavy machinery. She left at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Messrs. J. F. B. McCleery and Ben. Saylor, who arrived from San Francisco on Saturday, are famous billiard players, and are likely for a while to be lions of the hour among the many devotees of that pastime in Honolulu.

A Mikado tea party is a novelty promised on Thursday evening, at the Y. M. C. A. hall, for the benefit of the organ and library funds of the Second Congregation of St. Andrew's Cathedral.

Mr. Geo. W. Macfarlane came home from San Francisco on Saturday. It is said that he succeeded in forwarding the loan business, so far as could be done before the return to England of Mr. Armstrong, agent of the English syndicate.

Captain Pearne, of the steamer Gaelic, was arrested on the day that vessel sailed from San Francisco for this port, for allowing Chinese to go on board contrary to the orders of the Customs authorities, and he gave bail in $1,000.

Robberies are said to have been frequent of late on Alapai street. Chinese are suspected. A resident there suggests that, pending the appointment of additional police for the suburbs, the patrol on Beretania street might occasionally look round the corner into Alapai street.

Death of Father Lyons.

The death of the patriarchal missionary, known as Father Lyons, is announced in this issue. He died at Waimea, Hawaii, on Wednesday last, in the eightieth year of his age, and after fifty-four years of service. Rev. Lorenzo Lyons came to these Islands in 1832, along with Messrs. Emerson, Lyman, Spalding, Alexander and Forbes. In an article on, "The Surviving Missionaries Living on the Island of Hawaii," in the last Friend, Rev. E. P. Baker says: "Father Lyons of Waimea is the only representative of the early missionary past of the islands, the great revival of 1836, 7 and 8 being the dividing line between the early missionary past and the later. His body a mere shadow, keeping his bed largely in the day time, and seized almost nightly by spasms, which take him to death's door, this veteran laborer of now more than fifty years' standing, has not long for earth. He is the great Hawaiian poet, and his verses, original and translated, which are sung in the churches all over the Islands, will effectually prevent death, when it comes, from hushing his voice."

Hotel Arrivals.

Saturday the arrivals at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, exclusive of passengers in transit by the Australia, were as follows: Oscar Unna and E. A. Hoffman, Maui; J. N. Wright and wife, Kohala; J. Marsden, Hawaii; Mr. and Mrs. Turtan, returning from San Francisco; A. P. Raymond, Boston; W. A. Douglas, J. F. B. McCleery and Ben Saylor, San Francisco.

Sunday: A. Haneberg, Kauai; Miss Brownlow, London; Chas. Wm. Clink, Greenock, Scotland; W. H. Cummings, Wailuku; H. Engelbrecht, San Francisco; T. R. Keyworth, Paauilo; W. H. Cornwell, Maui.

Moonlight Concert.

There will be a moonlight concert this Monday evening at 7:30 at Emma Square. The following is the programme:

- Overture—Light Cavalry.....Suppe
- Chorus—Tannhauser.....Wagner
- Waltz—Venetian Nights.....Strauss
- Selection—Princess Ida.....Sullivan
- Etelle and Ahi Wela.....
- Fantasia—Liliuokalani.....Michiels
- Gavotte—Cendrillon.....Neilson
- Polka—Catharine.....Michiels
- March—The Volunteers.....Metra
- Hawaii Ponoii.....

Mr. Michiels will kindly volunteer for this concert and will play two solos—Liliuokalani and Catharine.

Royal Present of a Flag.

His Majesty the King was pleased to present the captain of the S. S. Australia, shortly before her departure for the Colonies, with a handsome Hawaiian flag made of silk. The Australia ran under the English flag before she was bought by the Oceanic S. S. Company, and this is her first trip under the Hawaiian flag to Australia. Princess Liliuokalani accompanied the King on board the steamer on the interesting occasion, and the flag was cheered as it was hoisted to the main-top of the big steamship.

Prorogation of the Legislature.

The present session of the Legislature, which will be known doubtless as "the Hawaiian Long Parliament," will close on Saturday next, the hundred and twenty-ninth day if the house meets every day in the meantime. The ceremonies will probably be more brilliant than usual, on account of the recent lavish distribution of "feathers," under the organization of the Hawaiian Army and Navy, by act of this session.

The Salmon Crop.

The Alaska salmon pack is unusually heavy this year, and the deficiency in the Oregon, Washington Territory and California pack will be made up from this source. The run of salmon throughout the coast is growing lighter and lighter from year to year, and the cause is attributed to the voracious sea lion, against which all the packers have declared war.—S. F. Examiner.

TRADE POINTERS.

The Best Tonic.

Mr. Henry Billings, Washington, D. C., writes: "I have used your Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky for medicinal purposes. As a tonic I consider it superior to the hundreds of concoctions which are now flooding the land as stimulant liquors."

The ladies now wear corsets when they bathe at the seaside. Well, it is quite natural for whalebone to return to its native element.

Employment agent—"You said you didn't care what sort of a domestic I sent you." Lady—"I didn't say that, I know." "As to color, I mean." "Yes, I remember, I did. Either black or white, I said." Well, I filled the stipulation, didn't I? "No, the one you sent me is green."

A man whose daughter had married away from home, wrote to inquire what kind of a man her husband was, and received for reply: "I tell you, father, he's a prime good whistler, and you never saw such a hand for bluffs in all your days. He's got blue eyes, and his father belongs to church."

FOREIGN NEWS.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

The Austro-Hungarian Policy.

Herr Tisza, the Prime Minister, in the lower house of the Hungarian Parliament, replying to questions, said that Austro-Hungary intended to prevent any single power from establishing a protectorate over Bulgaria. They wanted independence among the Balkan States without courting covetous designs toward any of them. The Austro-German alliance continued guarding the mutual conditions of existence without endangering peace. Austro-Hungary would not allow any single power to make armed interference in Bulgaria. Herr Tisza refuted the assumption that Austro-Hungary was any way privy to the plan to depose Prince Alexander, or that she was aware that the Prince, as the latter said in his telegram to the Czar, regarded his crown as having been received direct from the Czar. He said Austro-Hungary firmly adhered to the Berlin Treaty, and that her relations with Germany remained unchanged. The treaty had been violated in certain cases, the most serious of which occurred last year in Eastern Roumelia. If Turkey claimed the right accorded her in the Balkan States, no other power would be entitled to resort to armed interference there. Also he held that no change in the constitutional or territorial relations of the Balkan countries could be effected without the consent of the Powers signatory to the Treaty of Berlin. The Government hoped their aims would be successful and would be attained in harmony with the Powers and without disturbing the peace of Europe. They should labor with calmness, doubly necessary in these critical times, but at the same time act with earnestness and resolution.

The London Standard, commenting on Herr Tisza's speech, says that it shows that whatever side arrangements have been made with the Czar, the alliance of Austria and Germany has never been superseded by a triple alliance. The cards of at least one European power are on the table and are found to suit admirably the honest game of English foreign policy which the Government has resolved to play.

Bulgarians Irritated.

The Russian Consulate in Sophia employed agents to distribute in the public houses a circular issued by General Kaulbars and addressed to the Russian Generals in Bulgaria. These agents having been caught on two days were severely and repeatedly beaten. General Kaulbars protested against the chastisement in a note. Natchevitch replied to the bearer of the note by word of mouth to the effect that he would not cause the chastisement of the guilty parties, but the Government must decline to become responsible for such accidents. The responsible parties, he added, were those who in times and circumstances like the present took upon themselves to distribute exciting publications broadcast.

September 30th, General Kaulbars received a deputation of 114 prominent citizens of Bulgaria, headed by Dr. Voulcheff as spokesman. They asked for the reconsideration of the Russian demands, particularly that for the postponement of the elections two months. The nation was anxious to speedily settle the choice of a prince to occupy the Bulgarian throne. They assured the General that Bulgaria was thankful to the Czar for his past protection, but maintained that the laws of the country must be respected. No other Ministry than that at present in power could extricate the country from its crisis. General Kaulbars in reply said: "The Bulgarians know very well that the Czar had their prosperity at heart, and they must confide in the Czar and carry out his wishes." Dr. Voulcheff interrupted General Kaulbars at this point and said: "If that is all you have to say we will retire." The deputation then withdrew.

They are for War.

The Emperor of Russia has expelled the reigning Prince of Bulgaria against the will of his people and has installed in his place a Russian military agent, who is empowered to call for troops from Moldavia Wallachia, and to summon the squadron from Sebastopol to ascend the Danube. The people of Bulgaria wanted, first, to keep Prince Alexander; not being allowed to do this, they want to convene the Subranje or Congress to elect a new sovereign, but the Emperor will tolerate nothing of the kind. Such a violent dislocation of the political machinery of Europe can hardly fail to lead to hostilities.

In a recent conversation with a member of the German Reichstag, who remonstrated at the large appropriation demanded by the Government for the purchase of new rifles, and who observed that the sum could not have been larger if war had been declared, Chancellor Bismarck replied: "War? we are at war now."

Prince Ignatieff, the famous Russian ambassador at the Porte, recently observed, in an interview with a reporter, that "war between Russia and Germany is inevitable. We helped Germany in her wars with Austria and France, and she has repaid us with duplicity and secret hostility. We are all as eager for revanche as France."

General Boulanger's views are known. He had not been a month in office as Minister of War before he put the French army on a war footing, and he has made no secret of his purpose to recover Alsace and Lorraine—if it can be done—before the expiration of his term of service. He has made the French army—to use the words of a competent military critic—the most efficient military machine in the world. Bismarck in the meantime offers to back up M. de Freycinet in demanding the retirement of the English from Egypt. France reciprocates by appointing M. L'Hervette, a noted German sympathizer, to the mission in Berlin. But neither nation is deceived by these diplomatic flirtations. Both realize that while they may delay they cannot avert the inevitable end. A more real indication of the future is the building, at the French dockyard at Toulon, of ten Russian men-of-war at a cost of $1,000,000 each. Russia would not incur such an expense in the present state of her finances unless she meant war with a maritime power, and France would not furnish a foreign nation with men-of-war unless she felt reasonably certain that the maritime power in question was not to be herself or one of her friends.

The Ready Hosts.

Germany has, under the various heads into which her military strength is divided, an effective force of 3,870,000 trained men, all of whom are familiar with the manual of arms, and with military evolutions. If Austria threw her strength to Germany it would add a force of about 1,500,000 more trained soldiers to Von Moltke's army, and would raise it to the almost incredible number of 5,370,000 fighting men.

Russia has, on paper, under arms and in the various reserves, something like 10,000,000 men, but her actual fighting force does not probably exceed 2,500,000 men. France has 2,000,000 men, trained to war and in admirable condition and discipline. General Boulanger lately said that the whole of this force could take the field within thirty days after a declaration of war. It is known that the French artillery is now the finest in the world. Without taking this into account, France and Russia could meet Germany and Austria with 4,500,000 fighting men.

At the opening of the Franco-German war, the effective strength of the French was 600,361 men, while that of the North German Confederation was 842,155, besides command of the services of 187,600 troops belonging to the South German Confederation. In the war of the American Rebellion, the available force present for duty on May 1, 1864, was 662,345, and the total force present for duty, equipped, only 533,447 men. About the same time the whole strength of the Confederate army, which was probably its highest at any time, was 477,233. These figures contrast curiously with the figures of the armies now massing for the fray in Europe.
